under implementation for women. Women's polytechnics and vocational training programmes are being taken up to improve employability of women.

Pre-school centres, as adjuncts to primary/middle schools would help in improving girls' enrolment in the classes. Moreover, non-formal education centres and adult educaton centres expulsively for girls and women are also being set up to improve litracy of girls. Condensed courses of education for girls are being taken up to improve their education levels.

The major thrust under Health sector is being directed towards reduction of material and infant mortality rates. Expansion of MCH care, universal immunisation, promotion of health consciousness and nutrition education are given priority. Besides, nutriton supplement, iron and folic acid tables are given to mothers for bridging calorie vitamin gap as well as for fighting anaemia.

Apart from above, schemes have been taken up by the Department of Women and Child Development for building public opinion against atrocities on women and for generating awareness among the masses about the need for improvement of women's status.

(c) and (d) Earmaking of funds is not big done for these schemes. However, adequate provisions are being made in the Plans under respective sectors for various schemes that benefit women.
